Currently she is an invited writer and editor for Little Pipa, an Educational Magazine for young Chinese learners in the US.

My son entered a Chinese immersion program this year. He had spent 2 years (2-4) in China at a Chinese preschool, so this was a perfect primer a few weeks before entering the program. I see they are already learning the first two strokes taught in the book, so seems the perfect supplement with room to practice strokes and a great introduction to basic Chinese characters.

Perfect. My daughter is in an advanced school that begins teaching Mandarin as early as Kinder. She started late, but this has been a real help.

pretty good

I bought this for my son, and he likes it.

Kid loves it and started to learn already. Very good book to practice writing Chinese, also useful to learn PinYin. Page is letter size (8.5 by 11 inches) with about 140 pages. Paper quality is also very good too.

This is one of my favorite Chinese books. It's great for those whom have a basic understanding of Hanzi (the characters). It is not advised for completely newbies because there is no English translation for most characters. It's to practice the first 100 characters or so you've learned.

My son 5 yrs old loves this book. He started writing and tracing the first day that we had this book. He can finish 3-4 pages each practice. We used it as a supplementary practice book to other Chinese books. Great book for 5 or 6 yrs old who just begin learning Chinese.

I've been trying to teach my 6 year old write Chinese characters all summer long, she learn about 20 characters the most, such painful learning experience for both me and her. Then I found this book on ,it was super easy to understand and follow, she fell in love writing Chinese characters! It's amazing! Highly recommend!
