All Barbie Level 3 books I write the same thing. Looks like a comic book, lots of graphics, but not much of a story line when the words are up in clouds or boxed with lots of sounds, "BAM!...AGH!..." etc. Not a good level 3. Great for a young level 2 reader. Makes the feel like they've gone up a level when they are just reading a comic.

We ordered 3 of the life in the dream house easy readers, and this is my kids favorite of them (the other two are Chelsea birthday, and dream closet). My three oldest (she's 7, 6 and 5) like to pick out a part and read these comic readers together like plays. My 5 year old memorized her parts so she can go along with me and the older two. It makes for a hilarious story time!

Love it.

Terrible. The story line is cute but a bit disjointed for this reading level. Its a reality show baking competition between blonde Barbie, brunette dumb Barbie, black haired mean Barbie and a brother dubbed "the queen of cream puffs"...um, for his baking skills. (This is a level 3 reader.) The story alternates between the girls being mean to each other, to include doing a karate chop and kicking food across the room that another person was going to use, just to get more TV time, and one eating her own entry cupcakes. We checked this out from the library (thank goodness I didn't pay for it) and my 4 yo said "those kids are not very nice at all!" and my 6 yo said "I hope I never meet people like that." It's ridiculous. It's stupid. It's shameful that there is anything written for children like this crap.

My 4 and 6 year old kids love this book. We borrowed it from the library, and they are insisting we buy it now! Typical Life in the Dreamhouse storyline, kind of silly and funny. They both laugh out loud at certain parts every time we read it, especially the 4 year old. I'm not big on the comic book format since I am reading it to them, but the kids don't seem to mind it.

My daughter and I love the books of this series, but we are not so fond of the comic reader. It is still a bit confusing for my 6 year old. We prefer regular stories.
