China's Regional Relations: Evolving Foreign Policy Dynamics

Synopsis

Has China's much-discussed "charm offensive" come to an end? Are fears about the country's more assertive foreign policies justified? How will a rising China interact with its regional neighbors? Mark Beeson and Fujian Li address these questions by comprehensively exploring the nature, effectiveness, and implications of China's foreign policy strategy in Asia and Australia.

Customer Reviews

Although many other works have examined China's regional relations, few have done so in the systematic manner that Beeson and Li adopt. (Brandon K. Yoder International Studies Review) A welcome addition to the growing literature on China's foreign relations in the twenty-first century. (Zhiqun Zhu Pacific Affairs) Lively and accessible.... A comprehensive and timely review of the emerging dynamics of China's regional diplomacy. (Yong Wang, Peking University) An excellent overview of China's foreign relations and the impact of China's rise on the world and East Asia. Beeson and Li's argument is deep, straightforward, and balanced. (Yong Deng, US Naval Academy) An insightful analysis.... The authors display a thorough knowledge of the Chinese perspective, including the views of both the party-state leadership and Chinese netizens. (Choice) [An] authoritative survey of power maximisation and strategic calculation. (Kosmas Tsokhas Journal of Contemporary Asia) A well-structured and convincing analysis of

China's regionalism diplomacy and its consequences for international order. (Zhemming Zhong Journal of Chinese Political Science)
