He is an Associate Editor of the journal Professional Psychology: Research and Practice and Editor of its Focus on Ethics section. Barnett has presented and published widely on issues relevant to ethical practice in psychology. He is active in leadership positions in the profession of psychology and has served as president of the Maryland Psychological Association and of several APA Divisions. W. Brad Johnson is an Associate Professor of psychology in the Department of Leadership, Ethics, and Law at the United States Naval Academy, and a Faculty Associate in the Graduate School of Business and Education at Johns Hopkins University. A clinical psychologist, he is a fellow of the American Psychological Association and has served as a member of the APA Ethics Committee. Johnson has authored more than 80 articles and book chapters, as well as nine books, in the areas of ethical behavior, mentor relationships, and counseling. He is a contributing editor to several journals in the field of psychology, and is past-president of Division 19 of the American Psychological Association--the national association of military psychologists.

I liked this book a lot. It has all the APA ethics outlined and offers lots of examples of common ethical complications with both. It is a good handbook for any psychologist.

for a psychology major it's really good to have - required reading - ethics desk reference - helps keep you out of trouble :)

This book was essential to the class I completed. I was able to refer to this book when writing papers and joining in discussions in graduate school
