Book by Sutphen, Dick, Sutphen, Richard

Reinventing yourself is still a beautiful book with a beautiful message. I first read the book in 1993 when I was 19 years old. The message hits home for me now, years later in ways I could not have gotten especially then. Sure I read "all the words", but they hit me differently then. When I see the critical 15 and wisdom erasing karma; my understanding and compassion are deeper now than even then. Although in many ways I am the same Josh Clayton. I have truly and honestly come to an understanding that does work with reality instead of being uncomfortable in my own skin in reality. To put it another simpler way: I am ready. I am enlightened and I do understand and I am not afraid to mean it anymore, to myself especially. After all, as the old saying goes "there are no victims, only volunteers". That is reality. That is the key to my inner peace and that is what is for me. This has been a life of growth, evolution and work for me. But, also, I understand that mastery happens and there really are no pedagogical infinities. When the top really is reached, only then, play is possible for real and life is to be enjoyed. Simply enjoyed. That is the miracle of all miracles that counts always.

Dick Sutphen's nearly 20 years of research and study of human potential led to this ultra-powerful book that is a quick read. One of the few books that is so full of profound observations it holds up well after several re-readings. Sutphen has a talent for using few words to transmit life-changing messages of overcoming our individual blocks to happiness and fulfillment. All this and a bargain price to boot!

Live anything Mr Sutphen writes. Read every word of every book he has written. People need to open their minds and question everything. This book and all things but his words are always a blessing to me. If you meditate go to his website and download MP3s Simple read with great insight into how to take charge of your life. Enjoyed reading this one.

Thank you.
